ANNUAL REPORT 2000

The Montreal Economic Institute (MEI) is an independent, non-profit, non-partisan research and educational institute. It endeavours to promote an economic approach to the study of public policy issues. The MEI’s mission is to propose original and innovative solutions for the crafting of efficient public policies, using successful reforms applied elsewhere as models.

The MEI studies how markets function with the aim of identifying the mechanisms and institutions which foster the prosperity and long-term welfare of all the individuals which make up our society. The MEI is the product of a collaborative effort between Montreal-area entrepreneurs, academics and economists. The Institute does not accept any public funding.

• MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIRMAN •

It is with great pride that we offer an overview of what was accomplished by the Montreal Economic Institute during the past year in this Annual Report 2000.

As an entrepreneur myself, I know how difficult it can be to launch a new project. In only its second year of existence, the MEI has proven beyond doubt that it is a dynamic institution and that it is here to stay. In a very short period of time, it has established itself as a respected voice in public policy debates in Quebec.

We often hear the complaint that political and economic issues are too complicated, and that the discussions over government decisions are monopolized by interest groups and experts, thereby excluding ordinary citizens. But there can be no democratic process worthy of this name without input from ordinary citizens. And to be able to provide this input, they need to understand these complicated issues.

This is the role of a think tank like the MEI: to communicate analysis of major public policy issues based on sound economic principles that can be understood by the general public. Among other things, the extraordinary interest generated by the publication of the Report Card on Quebec’s Secondary School among thousands of educators, school administrators, parents and students is a proof that this goal is being met.

An enterprise like the MEI could not develop without the generous help of donors and supporters. I hope that those of you who contributed to MEI’s success in 2000 will be convinced, after reading this Report, that your effort, time and money was well-invested.

Adrien D. Pouliot - Chairman of the Board
• MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR •

The year 2000 was the first full year of activities for the Montreal Economic Institute. In terms of publications and activities, we have already reached cruising speed, with an average of one conference organized and one study published every month over the year. The coverage we have received in the Quebec media has been tremendous, and the MEI has already carved a niche for itself as one of the main players in the debates on public policy in this province.

Staff

One of the major challenges of a new institution is to find the right team of people to make it work, and we achieved this during the past year. Our first secretary, Suzanne Charest, had to leave us and was replaced by Geneviève Chrétien. Our in-house economist, Norma Kozhaya, also left temporarily for maternity reasons.

Meanwhile, we have welcomed two new employees. Patrick Leblanc will be in charge of organizing conferences and seminars as Director of Events, and Martin Masse will take care of publications in addition to doing research and writings. We also use outside help for our Web site and conference organization. I remained in my post as Executive Director, where I have been since the MEI began its activities in 1999.

Events & Publications

Several hundred people attended the nine major events organized by the MEI in 2000. These events covered topics ranging from health care reform to interprovincial barriers and taxation.

Some of the twelve publications that we released in 2000 were related to these events. Apart from the books, the MEI publications are divided into two main types: small-format Economic Notes, and larger Research Papers. (See below for a full list of studies).

Media coverage

The media presence of the MEI increased exponentially during 2000. We had over 175 media hits (articles in newspapers and magazines, reports and interviews on TV and radio) over the course of the year. This includes columns and op-ed pieces published under my name or that of MEI collaborators in daily papers and magazines. The Report Card on Quebec’s Secondary Schools received a tremendous amount of coverage for several weeks, but in addition to that, almost all of our initiatives have received at least some coverage.
The MEI's goal is to disseminate the results of our research in the population at large, and our presence in the media is proof that we are succeeding. (A full list of our media archives is available on our web site.)

Web site

Our web site has been described by a recent Atlas Foundation newsletter as “impressive”. It allows us to reach thousands of people in Canada and around the world. All our publications are also available on the Web site.

Here again, the study that had the greatest impact was the Report Card. In the days following its publication, the average number of daily hits to our Web site went from 200 to more than 60,000. Aside from this spectacular surge, we have noticed a 5 to 10% steady monthly increase in visitors to our site.

Financial situation

Finally, the principal reason that we have been able to achieve so much in 2000 is that we raised the funds necessary to do it. Our current financial situation is excellent. Our annual revenues went from $278,838 in 1999 to $603,500 in 2000.
